ORDER

Presently before the Court is Defendant Lisa Rizzolo, the Lisa Rizzolo Separate Property Trust, and the LMR Trust’s (“Lisa Rizzolo”) Renewed Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Join a Necessary and Indispensable Party (Doc. #474), filed on September 30, 2010. Defendants Rick Rizzolo, the Rick and Lisa Rizzolo Family Trust, the Rick J. Rizzolo Separate Property Trust, and the RLR Trust (“Rick Rizzolo”), filed a Joinder to this motion (Doc. #475) on September 30, 2010. Plaintiffs Kirk and Amy Henry (“the Henrys”) filed an Opposition (Doc. #484) on October 18, 2010. Defendant Lisa Rizzolo filed a Reply (Doc. #490) on October 28, 2010. Defendant Rick Rizzolo filed a Joinder to the Reply (Doc. #494) on October 29, 2010.

1 I. BACKGROUND

2 Plaintiffs Kirk and Amy Henry (“the Henrys”) allege that Defendant Rick 3 Rizzolo owned and operated a strip club, the Crazy Horse Too, through a closely held 4 corporation. (Compl. [Doc. #1] at 2-3.) The Henrys allege Rick and Lisa Rizzolo operated, 5 or acquiesced in the operation of, the Crazy Horse Too in a criminal manner such that the 6 Crazy Horse Too was a racketeering enterprise. (Id. at 3.) According to the Henrys, as a 7 result of the criminal operation of the Crazy Horse Too, Kirk Henry was attacked at the club
8 and rendered a quadriplegic. (Id.) Following Kirk Henry’s injury, the Henrys sued Rick 9 Rizzolo in 2001. (Id.)

10 The Henrys allege that based on this personal injury lawsuit, in which Rick 11 Rizzolo faced liability in excess of ten million dollars, Defendants Rick and Lisa Rizzolo 12 thereafter engaged in a concerted effort to conceal assets to avoid paying the Henrys. (Id.)
13 Specifically, the Henrys contend Defendants formed a family trust and transferred assets 14 into the trust to hide and shield assets, and Defendants engaged in a series of transactions, 15 including an allegedly collusive divorce, in which Lisa Rizzolo obtained all assets of value 16 while Rick Rizzolo acquired only the Crazy Horse Too, which Defendants knew or 17 expected would be forfeited due to criminal activity at the club. (Id. at 3-4.) Plaintiffs also 18 contend Defendants engaged in other transactions, such as loans, gambling debts, and other 19 third party transactions, all of which were designed to conceal assets from the Henrys. (Id.)
20 Based on these allegations, Plaintiffs brought this action against Defendants Lisa and Rick 21 Rizzolo and the Rick and Lisa Rizzolo Family Trust (“Trust”), asserting claims for 22 conspiracy to defraud (count one), common law fraud (count two), and violation of the 23 Nevada Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (“NUFTA”). Plaintiffs later amended the 24 Complaint to add as Defendants several other trusts owned or controlled by Lisa and/or 25 Rick Rizzolo. (Second Am. Compl. [Doc. #200].)

26 ///

1 Defendants now renew their motion to dismiss for failure to join indispensable 2 parties.¹ Defendants argue that because Plaintiffs have alleged Defendants conspired with 3 unnamed attorneys and accountants, Plaintiffs were required to join those attorneys and 4 accountants as indispensable parties once they discovered the identities of those individuals.
5 Defendants also argue that because the attorneys and accountants received funds from 6 Defendants, they are transferees of funds from the alleged asset-concealment scheme, and 7 thus are necessary and indispensable parties to the extent any such transfers would be 8 undone to satisfy the obligations owed to the Henrys. Finally, Defendants argue Plaintiffs 9 have failed to join the trustees of each of the Defendant trusts, and the trustees as legal 10 owners of the trust property are necessary and indispensable parties.

11 The Henrys respond that this Court already has rejected Defendants' argument 12 that their claims should be dismissed for failure to join indispensable parties. The Henrys 13 also contend that the attorneys and accountants are not necessary parties because the Henrys 14 have voluntarily dismissed the conspiracy claim, and the attorneys and accountants are not 15 transferees under the NUFTA because they merely facilitated fraudulent transfers between 16 Lisa and Rick Rizzolo. As to the trustees of the trusts, the Henrys argue that only the trust 17 itself, not the trustee, need be named as a party. The Henrys further contend that even if the 18 trustees are necessary parties, they are not indispensable because Lisa and Rick Rizzolo 19 adequately represent the trusts' interests, and the Court can afford complete relief as it can 20 compel Lisa and Rick Rizzolo, as owners and beneficiaries of the trusts, to repatriate assets 21 to the United States.

22 ///

23 ///

24
25
26 ¹ Defendant Lisa Rizzolo previously moved to dismiss on this same basis. (Mot. to Dismiss for Failure to Join a Necessary & Indispensable Party (Doc. #216).) The Court denied the motion, stating the motion was "premature because the deadline for filing amended pleadings and adding parties" had not yet expired. (Order (Doc. #238).)

1 II. DISCUSSION

2 Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 19(a), a party must be joined as a 3 “required” party in two circumstances: (1) when “the court cannot accord complete relief 4 among existing parties” in that party’s absence, and (2) when the absent party “claims an 5 interest relating to the subject of the action” and resolving the action in the person’s absence 6 may, as a practical matter, “impair or impede the person’s ability to protect the interest,” or 7 may “leave an existing party subject to a substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or 8 otherwise inconsistent obligations because of the interest.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(a)(1). If the 9 Court finds an absent party is “required” under either of these tests, the Court then 10 determines whether joinder is feasible. In re County of Orange, 262 F.3d 1014, 1022 (9th 11 Cir. 2001). Joinder is feasible if the person is subject to service of process and his joinder 12 will not deprive the Court of subject matter jurisdiction. Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(a)(1).

13 If joinder of the necessary party is feasible, then the party will be joined and the 14 action will proceed. If joinder is not feasible, then the Court must determine whether, in 15 “equity and good conscience,” the party is “indispensable” under Rule 19(b) such that the 16 action should not proceed without that party. Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(b). In making this 17 determination, the Court should consider:

- 18 (1) the extent to which a judgment rendered in the person’s absence 19 might prejudice that person or the existing parties; 20 (2) the extent to which any prejudice could be lessened or avoided by:
21 (A) protective provisions in the judgment;
22 (B) shaping the relief; or 23 (C) other measures;
24 (3) whether a judgment rendered in the person’s absence would be 25 adequate; and 26 (4) whether the plaintiff would have an adequate remedy if the action were dismissed for nonjoinder.

24 Id. This list is not exhaustive, and the Court can consider other factors, such as the 25 “interests of the courts and the public in complete, consistent, and efficient settlement of 26 controversies.” Paiute-Shoshone Indians of Bishop Community of Bishop Colony, Cal. v.

1 City of Los Angeles, 637 F.3d 993, 1000 (9th Cir. 2011).

2 Impairment of the absent party’s interest “may be minimized if the absent party is 3 adequately represented in the suit.” Shermoen v. United States, 982 F.2d 1312, 1318 (9th
4 Cir. 1992) (quotation omitted). To determine whether an existing party adequately 5 represents an absent party, the court considers whether: (1) the existing party’s interests in 6 the suit are such that it “undoubtedly” will make all of the absent party’s arguments; (2) the 7 existing party is “capable of and willing to make such arguments”; and (3) “the absent party 8 would offer any necessary element to the proceedings that the present parties would 9 neglect.” Id. (quotations omitted).

10 The Rule 19 inquiry “is a practical one and fact specific, and is designed to avoid 11 the harsh results of rigid application.” Clinton v. Babbitt, 180 F.3d 1081, 1088 (9th Cir.
12 1999) (quoting Shermoen, 982 F.2d at 1317). The party moving to dismiss bears the burden 13 of persuading the Court that dismissal is warranted. Id. Whether to dismiss lies within the 14 Court’s discretion. Shermoen, 982 F.2d at 1317.

15 A. Unnamed Attorneys and Accountants

16 The unnamed attorneys and accountants who allegedly conspired with 17 Defendants are not necessary parties. With respect to the conspiracy claim, the Court has 18 granted Plaintiffs’ motion to voluntarily dismiss that claim. Moreover, “[i]t has long been 19 the rule that it is not necessary for all joint tortfeasors to be named as defendants in a single 20 lawsuit.” Temple v. Synthes Corp., Ltd., 498 U.S. 5, 7 (1990); William Inglis & Sons
21 Baking Co. v. ITT Continental Baking Co., Inc., 668 F.2d 1014, 1053 (9th Cir. 1981) 22 (stating a plaintiff is not required to name or sue all co-conspirators who are jointly and 23 severally liable for all damages caused by the conspiracy). Consequently, Plaintiffs never 24 were required to name and join the attorneys and accountants as alleged co-conspirators.

25 ///

26 ///

1 As to the NUFTA claim, Plaintiffs need not name the attorneys or accountants so 2 long as Plaintiffs do not seek to undo a transfer to those individuals. Plaintiffs indicate that 3 they do not seek to undo transfers to the attorneys or accountants for their services, nor do 4 they seek relief against the attorneys and accountants for their alleged role in facilitating 5 fraudulent transfers between Rick and Lisa Rizzolo.

6 To the extent the attorneys and accountants were conduits through whom 7 fraudulent transfers occurred, they still are not necessary parties. Under the NUFTA, a 8 plaintiff may void a transfer against any transferee made with the actual intent to hinder, 9 delay, or defraud a creditor, unless the transferee took in good faith and for reasonably 10 equivalent value. Nev. Rev. Stat. §§ 112.180(1)(a), 112.220. As Plaintiffs allege 11 Defendants Lisa and Rick Rizzolo orchestrated various fraudulent transfers between 12 themselves, the fact that they may have used the services of attorneys and accountants to 13 facilitate those transfers does not make the attorneys and accountants necessary parties 14 where Plaintiffs seek no relief from these persons who acted as Defendants' agents or were 15 mere conduits for the transfers. See In re Dominion Corp., 199 B.R. 410, 413 (B.A.P. 9th 16 Cir. 1996) (holding, in bankruptcy context, that mere conduit acting as facilitator to transfer 17 is not a transferee because it does not exercise dominion or control over the funds passing 18 through its hands); Herup v. First Boston Fin., LLC, 162 P.3d 870, 874 n.15 (Nev. 2007) 19 (stating that fraudulent conveyance cases under the bankruptcy code are "instructive" on 20 issues relating to NUFTA because "the underlying policy of both the UFTA and the 21 Bankruptcy Code is to preserve a debtor's assets for the benefit of creditors," and because 22 of the similarity of the language in UFTA and relevant portions of the bankruptcy code).
23 The Court therefore will deny the motion to dismiss based on the failure to join the 24 attorneys and accountants, as these parties are neither necessary nor indispensable.

25 ///

26 ///

1 B. Trustees of Defendants’ Trusts

2 Plaintiffs name as Defendants five trusts: (1) The Rick and Lisa Rizzolo Family
3 Trust, (2) the Rick J. Rizzolo Separate Property Trust, (3) the Lisa M. Rizzolo Separate 4 Property Trust, (4) the RLR Trust, and (5) the LMR Trust. Assuming without deciding that 5 the trustees are necessary parties under Rule 19(a), the Court is unable to determine if 6 joinder is feasible as to any trustee. Defendants’ motion provides no information regarding 7 who the trustees are for these trusts and whether joinder is feasible as to any or all trustees.
8 The only information Defendants provide is to indicate that one trustee is located in the 9 Cook Islands, but Defendants do not even identify which trust has a trustee in the Cook 10 Islands, much less present evidence to that effect. Defendants suggest that joinder would 11 not be feasible as to this trustee but provide no evidence or argument in support. As the 12 Court is unable to determine whether joinder is feasible as to any absent party even if they 13 are necessary, the Court will deny the motion.

14 Moreover, the Court concludes that to the extent any trust has a Cook Islands 15 trustee, that trustee is not indispensable. Judgment in the trustees’ absence might prejudice 16 the trustees in the sense that the trustees presumably have powers to exercise over trust 17 assets, although Defendants have not provided the Court with the trust documents in 18 support of this motion to verify that fact, and the Court will not search the record for the 19 trust documents. However, Defendants do not dispute Plaintiffs’ assertion that Defendants 20 Rick and Lisa Rizzolo ultimately exercise control over the trust assets. The impairment to 21 the trustees’ interests therefore are minimized, as Lisa and Rick Rizzolo adequately will 22 represent the absent trustees. Lisa and Rick Rizzolo’s interests in this action are such that 23 they undoubtedly will make all of the absent trustees’ arguments, as they have equal if not 24 greater interest in protecting the trust corpus than the trustees. Lisa and Rick Rizzolo each

25 ///

26 ///

1 are represented by counsel, and the same counsel also represent the named trusts.² Thus, 2 the existing parties are willing to and capable of making the trustees' arguments. Finally, 3 Defendants point to no necessary element the trustees would bring to the proceedings that 4 Rick and Lisa Rizzolo would neglect. Indeed, Defendants fail to make any indispensability 5 argument under the relevant Rule 19(b) factors, simply stating that the trustees are 6 indispensable without any elaboration.

7 As to the other Rule 19(b) factors, a judgment rendered in the trustees' absence
8 would be adequate because the Court has personal jurisdiction over Lisa and Rick Rizzolo, 9 and the Court could order them to direct the trustees to take appropriate action should 10 Plaintiffs prevail. Defendants have not suggested Plaintiffs have an alternative adequate 11 remedy if the Court dismissed this action for nonjoinder. Further, the courts and the public 12 have an interest in the complete, consistent, and efficient settlement of controversies, which 13 would be frustrated if a defendant could defeat a fraudulent joinder action by moving 14 fraudulently conveyed assets to an offshore trust administered by a trustee not subject to 15 jurisdiction in United States courts, and then claim that failure to join the trustee mandates 16 dismissal under Rule 19. See Nastro v. D'Onofrio, 263 F. Supp. 2d 446, 455-56 (D. Conn.
17 2003) (holding trustee of foreign asset protection trust was not an indispensable party where 18 trust beneficiaries were parties to the action and adequately would represent the absent 19 trustee's interests). Such a result would not comport with Rule 19's direction that the Court 20 consider whether in equity and good conscious the matter ought to proceed in the non-21 joined party's absence.

22 In sum, Defendants have not met their burden of persuading the Court that 23 dismissal is warranted. The Court, in its discretion, therefore will deny Defendants' motion 24 to dismiss for failure to join indispensable parties.

Summons Issued to the Lisa M. Rizzolo Separate Property Trust & the LMR Trust (Doc. #220); Notice of Association of Counsel (Doc. #415).

1 III. CONCLUSION

2 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Defendant Lisa Rizzolo, the Lisa Rizzolo
3 Separate Property Trust, and the LMR Trust's ("Lisa Rizzolo") Renewed Motion to Dismiss 4 for Failure to Join a Necessary and Indispensable Party (Doc. #474) is hereby DENIED.
